

GARY REYNOLDS

STORY: Gary Reynolds moved to the Yukon in the late 1960's. He was employed with the Yukon Electrical Company Ltd. (ATCO Electric) as a lineman and in the engineering and customer service departments. He was heavily involved in his community through various volunteer groups, politics, and sports.

Gary had a keen interest in furthering his education and took many University and College courses in-person and through correspondence. He had a love of the history, land, and people of the Yukon.

Gary built a cabin at Tagish Lake and spent as much time there as possible with his family. He took up geology as a recreational endeavor and even staked some claims.

Gary passed away at the age of 50 with many opportunities and accomplishments still ahead of him.
